VOCATIONAL SCHOOL OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

Vocational School of Social Sciences continues its education and training activities at Istanbul Medipol University Kavacık North campus. Within the Vocational School, education is provided in a total of 14 (fourteen) programs, 13 (thirteen) of which are day school, and 1 (one) program is night school.

At the Vocational School, students are given an associate degree diploma after 2 (two) years of education. Students take the courses in their curriculum in the first year and gain experience in the sector in addition to the second-year courses. Programs with vocational practice (vocational training or internship) in the curriculum provide skills in the sector for at least 36 (thirty-six) working days in the fall, spring, or summer semesters. In this way, students acquire theoretical knowledge as well as up-to-date practical knowledge in their fields.

The language of instruction of our programs is Turkish. Only the Applied English Translation Program provides 100% English education. Therefore, there is a compulsory English Preparatory Class in this program.

Students who graduate from Vocational School programs have the opportunity to complete their associate degree education to undergraduate education by taking the External Transfer Exam (DGS) after completing their education.

In addition to the permanent lecturers at the Vocational School, lecturers from different academic units of Istanbul Medipol University contribute to the programs in order to carry out the education and training activities completely. For some courses that require specialized teaching, we also receive support from middle and senior managers who are active in the sector and successful in their profession.

A few of our trainers from the sector who support us:

- ▶ Barış Emrah Kayalıoğlu – Journalist / Commentator
- ▶ Fatih Kuşçu – Journalist / Communication Consultant
- ▶ Yaprak Hırka Yıldız - TGRT News Anchor

FOREIGN TRADE

In today's world where all kinds of goods and services that will add value to life move internationally, the Foreign Trade Program, which undertakes very important tasks, has become indispensable in the economic and social lives of countries. Foreign Trade fills an important gap in the lives of both individuals and countries, providing a more competitive environment to meet different demands and needs by supplying products that are lacking. In short, operations to be associated with all kinds of marketing activities to be carried out abroad fall within the scope of the Foreign Trade Program.

Thus, our department, which aims to train semi-skilled staff with essential knowledge in the areas where they are needed, incorporates courses that will provide students with a foreign trade perspective into its curriculum in addition to general business courses.

Providing the opportunity to work both in the office environment and in the field, the department offers its graduates the opportunity to work in a wide range of fields. If you think you have language skills, if you are meticulous in your work, if you are curious about different cultures, if you think you have organizational skills, if you have strong human relations, and if you are interested in continuous learning, you can consider the Foreign Trade Program.

Employment Areas of Graduates

HUMAN RESOURCES MANAGEMENT

Human Resources Management is the process of recruiting, training, developing, motivating, and evaluating a sufficient number of skilled employees to perform the functions necessary for businesses to achieve their goals. Today, motivating and retaining human resources has become one of the most important agendas of organizations. Competent human resources experts and managers are the ones who will meet these needs of businesses.

The aim of the Human Resources Management Program is to train employees who are qualified in the field of human resources management as well as all the basic subjects of a business, especially in the field of human resources management, knowledgeable, equipped, and able to work in a global environment. The Human Resources Management Program aims to train people who will work in the field of human resources management in both private and public institutions in order to contribute to the use of human resources more consciously and thus to increase their productivity.

Nonetheless, it is seen that human resources management positions are mostly occupied by graduates from outside the field. In order to meet this need, it is aimed to provide our graduates with the general knowledge and skills required for management as well as the academic equipment and practical skills that will enable them to successfully undertake the human resources function. Another aim of the program is to provide students with the necessary skills in business and business development, which institutions need for field applications.

Employment Areas of Graduates
